

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
WESTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON AT SEATTLE

DENNIS BARNETT and WILLIAM
BARNETT,

Plaintiffs,

V.

T.D. ESCROW SERVICES, INC., et al.,

Defendants.

NO. C05-799JLR

ORDER

I. INTRODUCTION

This matter comes before the court on Defendants Homecomings Financial Network, Inc.’s (“Homecomings”) and Wilshire Credit Corporation’s (“Wilshire”) motion to dismiss for judgment on the pleadings (Dkt. # 23). Having considered the documents filed in support of this motion and lacking any opposition, the court GRANTS in part and DENIES in part Defendants’ motion.

II. BACKGROUND

In January 1989, Plaintiff Dennis Barnett purchased a residence in Marysville, Washington. As part of the purchase, Barnett executed a promissory note for $69,000 and a deed of trust securing the loan. Over the next decade, the deed of trust was reassigned multiple times, most recently to Homecomings. In fall 2001, Barnett fell behind in his loan payments to Ocwen, the loan servicing agent at that time, and Ocwen declared default,

1 threatening to foreclose unless Barnett paid $49,603.05 to reinstate the loan. Barnett 2 borrowed $40,000 from his father and secured a written agreement from Ocwen that paying 3 such an amount would reinstate the loan.

4 In early 2002, Ocwen transferred servicing rights on Barnett's loan to Wilshire.
 5 Although Barnett made his February 2002 payment to Ocwen and his March 2002 payment to 6 Wilshire, Wilshire returned his March check and claimed default. On March 27, 2002, 7 Defendant T.D. Escrow Services ("T.D. Escrow") issued a Notice of Trustee's Sale alleging 8 Barnett had missed 15 months of payments. Barnett successfully stopped the foreclosure 9 proceedings, made two more payments to Wilshire, and sent a letter requesting clarification 10 of his account status in light of his previous $40,000 payment to Ocwen. Although it is 11 unclear whether Wilshire provided such clarification, Wilshire claimed that Barnett defaulted 12 again in January 2003 by allegedly failing to make any payments during 2002.

13 Consequently, Barnett and his father¹ filed suit against Homecomings, Wilshire, 14 Ocwen, and T.D. Escrow alleging wrongful acts, usury, and violations of the Washington 15 Consumer Protection Act ("WCPA"), Real Estate Settlement Practice Act ("RESPA"), and 16 Fair Debt Collection Practices Act ("FDCPA"). Homecomings and Wilshire have jointly 17 filed the current motion to dismiss all of Plaintiffs' claims. Plaintiffs have failed to file any 18 papers in opposition to Defendants' motion.²

19 III. DISCUSSION

20 A. Legal Standard

21 When considering a motion for judgment on the pleadings under Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(c), 22 the court assumes that the material facts as pleaded are true and draws all inferences in favor 23 ¹Barnett's father ultimately refinanced the loan and paid it off in February 2004.

 24

25 ²The court notes that Plaintiffs' failure to oppose this motion "may be considered by the court 26 as an admission that the motion has merit." W.D. Wash. Local Rule CR 7(b)(2).

1 of the non-moving party. Hal Roach Studios, Inc. v. Richard Feiner & Co., Inc., 896 F.2d 2 1542, 1550 (9th Cir. 1989); Gen. Conference Corp. of Seventh-Day Adventists v. Seventh-3 Day Adventist Congregational Church, 887 F.3d 228, 230 (9th Cir. 1989). Judgment on the 4 pleadings is proper when the moving party demonstrates that there are no remaining issues of 5 material fact and that it is entitled to judgment as a matter of law. Hal Roach, 896 F.2d at 6 1550. Documents considered by the court that are attached to the complaint and incorporated 7 by reference will not convert a Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(c) motion for judgment on the pleadings 8 into a Fed. R. Civ. P. 56 motion for summary judgment. Fed. R. Civ. P. 10(c); Hal Roach, 9 896 F.2d at 1555, n.19; Sira v. Morton, 380 F.3d 57, 67 (2d Cir. 2004).

10 B. Accounting

11 Plaintiffs allege that “there was no current amount in default and that the foreclosure 12 was wrongful,” or alternatively, that any amount owed “was less than the amount or number 13 of payments claimed.” Compl. at ¶¶ 4.2-4.3. Consequently, Plaintiffs seek declaratory 14 judgment in the form of an accounting of the amount owed under RCW §§ 61.24 and 7.24.
 15 To state a claim for accounting, Plaintiffs must allege that (1) a fiduciary relationship exists 16 between the parties, or that the account “is so complicated that it cannot conveniently be 17 taken in an action at law,” (2) Plaintiffs previously demanded an accounting from Defendants, 18 and (3) Defendants refused. State v. Taylor, 362 P.2d 247, 253 (Wash. 1961) (quoting Seattle 19 Nat'l Bank v. Sch. Dist. No. 40, 55 P. 317, 319 (Wash. 1898)). Defendants Homecomings 20 and Wilshire argue that Plaintiffs’ accounting claim must be dismissed for failure to 21 sufficiently allege all three elements.

22 Accepting Plaintiffs’ factual allegations as true and drawing all inferences in their 23 favor, the court finds that Plaintiffs have failed to demonstrate the first element of an 24 accounting claim. In Washington, a lender is not a fiduciary of its borrower unless a special 25 relationship exists between the parties. Miller v. U.S. Bank of Wash., N.A., 865 P.2d 536,

1 543 (Wash. Ct. App. 1994). Plaintiffs fail to allege any facts suggesting such a special 2 relationship exists. Further, nothing in the complaint suggests that Plaintiffs' account is 3 particularly complicated. Indeed, Plaintiffs' allegations describe a typical loan arrangement 4 where a dispute developed over missed payments. The court finds that Plaintiffs have failed 5 to allege sufficient facts to satisfy the first element of an accounting claim and refrains from 6 considering whether Plaintiffs' complaint satisfies the remaining elements of an accounting 7 claim.

8 C. Usury

9 Plaintiffs allege that Wilshire (and Ocwen) charged them interest in excess of the 10 lawful maximum rate and as a result, all of the Defendants are guilty of usurious conduct.³ 11 Defendants contend that Plaintiffs' usury claim is time-barred under RCW § 19.52.032, and 12 in the alternative, that Plaintiffs' claim is preempted by federal law. Although Defendants 13 misstate the applicable statute of limitations, they correctly argue that Plaintiffs' usury claim 14 is preempted by federal law.⁴ The federal Depository Institutions Deregulation and Monetary 15 Control Act of 1980 ("DIDMCA") exempts from state laws expressly limiting interest rates, 16 mortgages and loans that are (1) "secured by a first lien on residential real property," (2) 17 made after March 31, 1980, and (3) "federally related." 12 U.S.C. § 1735f-7a(a)(1); Brown v.
 18 Investors Mort. Co., 121 F.3d 472, 475 (9th Cir. 1997).

19

20 ³Previously, the court found that Plaintiffs' usury claim against Ocwen failed because Ocwen 21 charged a lawful interest rate. Order, Dkt. # 25 at 3-4.

22 ⁴Despite the six-month statute of limitations established in RCW § 19.52.032 for usury claims, 23 Washington courts have long recognized that "a right of action exists for the recovery of usurious 24 interest in addition to that provided by statute, and that this remedy has a 3-year limitation period."
Flannery v. Bishop, 504 P.2d 778, 781 (Wash. 1972). Given that Plaintiffs paid off their loan in 25 February 2004 and filed suit 13 months later, Plaintiffs' usury claim is timely. See RCW § 19.52.032 (providing that statute of limitations commences the earlier of six months after final payment becomes due, or six months after the principal is paid in full).

1 Here, Plaintiffs' complaint alleges that they obtained a purchase money mortgage for a 2 residential home on January 5, 1989, satisfying the first two elements. Compl., at ¶¶ 3.1-3.2.
 3 By alleging a RESPA claim, Plaintiffs' complaint indirectly establishes the third element, 4 "federally related mortgage," because RESPA governs "federally related mortgage loans"
 5 which are defined substantially the same under DIDMCA and RESPA. Compare 12 U.S.C. § 6 1735f-5(b) (DIDMCA), with 12 U.S.C. §§ 2602, 2605 (RESPA). Thus, assuming all of 7 Plaintiffs' allegations are true, Plaintiffs' usury claim is preempted by federal law.

8 D. Washington Consumer Protection Act

9 To state a claim under the WCPA, Plaintiffs must allege (1) an unfair or deceptive act 10 or practice, (2) occurring in trade or commerce, (3) affecting the public interest, (4) that 11 injures Plaintiffs' business or property, and (5) bears a causal link between the act and 12 Plaintiffs' damages. Hangman Ridge Training Stables, Inc. v. Safeco Title Ins. Co., 719 P.2d 13 531, 533 (Wash. 1986). Assuming all of Plaintiffs' allegations are true, the court finds that 14 Plaintiffs fail to state a claim under the WCPA. Although Plaintiffs allege generally that 15 "Defendants' conduct" violates the WCPA, Plaintiffs fail to specify what conduct by 16 Homecomings or Wilshire constitutes an unfair or deceptive act. Rather, Plaintiffs focus their 17 WCPA claim solely on T.D. Escrow's alleged violation of the "statute regarding foreclosure 18 procedures RCW 61.24 which is in turn a violation of RCW 19.86." Compl. at ¶ 6.3. Thus, 19 the court finds that Plaintiffs have failed to allege sufficient facts demonstrating that 20 Homecomings or Wilshire committed an unfair or deceptive act, and refrains from 21 considering whether Plaintiffs' complaint satisfies the remaining elements of a WCPA claim.⁵

 23 24

 25 ⁵Further, the basis for Plaintiffs' damages claim under the WCPA is less than clear given that Defendants threatened, but never foreclosed on Plaintiffs' home, and that Plaintiff William Barnett refinanced the loan and paid it off prior to filing suit.

1 E. Real Estate Settlement Practices Act

2 Plaintiffs allege that Wilshire (and Ocwen) violated RESPA by failing to honor 3 “proper requests for information by Dennis Barnett about loan balances, and requests for 4 acknowledgment of amounts paid.” Compl., at ¶ 7.2. RESPA requires federally related 5 mortgage loan servicers, such as Wilshire, to take certain actions when a borrower sends a 6 “qualified written request.” 12 U.S.C. § 2605(e)(1)(A). To qualify, a borrower’s request 7 must be (1) in writing, (2) state the borrower’s name and account, and (3) state the reasons 8 the borrower believes the account is in error. Id. Plaintiffs’ complaint references and 9 attaches three letters that Plaintiff Dennis Barnett sent Wilshire, which may be properly 10 considered by this court without converting Defendants’ motion for judgment on the 11 pleadings into a motion for summary judgment. Fed. R. Civ. P. 10(c); Hal Roach, 896 F.2d at 12 1555, n.19; Sira v. Morton, 380 F.3d 57, 67 (2d Cir. 2004). Of these three letters, only the 13 one sent on June 14, 2002 constitutes a “qualified written request.”⁶ Compl., Exh. B.

14 Failure to respond to a borrower within 60 days of receiving a qualified written request 15 exposes a loan servicer to potential liability for actual damages and up to $1,000 in additional 16 damages “in the case of a pattern or practice of noncompliance.” 12 U.S.C. § 2605(f)(1).
 17 The court finds that Defendant Wilshire’s failure to respond to the June 14, 2002 letter 18 exposes it to liability for actual damages (if any), but not to additional damages. Although 19 Defendants argue that Plaintiffs’ complaint fails to allege any actual damages, the court finds 20 otherwise based on Plaintiffs’ allegation seeking “damages for violation of the RESPA 21 including statutory and actual damages.” Compl., at ¶ 9.4. To the extent Plaintiffs seek 22

 24 ⁶The July 5, 2002 letter fails to state any reasons why Plaintiff Dennis Barnett believed his 25 account was in error, while the July 19, 2002 letter fails to include any account identifying 26 information. Compl., Exh. C, D. Defendants concede that the third letter sent on June 14, 2002 constitutes a “qualified written request.” Id., Exh. B.

1 additional damages, the court finds that Wilshire's failure to respond to one qualified written 2 request falls short of demonstrating a "pattern or practice of noncompliance" warranting 3 additional damages. E.g., In Re Maxwell, 281 B.R. 101, 123 (Bankr. D. Mass. 2002) (failing 4 to respond to one qualified request does not rise to a "pattern or practice"); In re Tomasevic, 5 273 B.R. 682, 686-87 (Bankr. M. D. Fla. 2002) (same). Thus, Wilshire (and possibly 6 Ocwen) is liable for any actual damages caused by its failure to respond to Plaintiff Dennis 7 Barnett's June 14, 2002 letter.⁷

8 F. Fair Debt Collection Practices Act

9 Plaintiffs' final claim alleges Wilshire violated the FDCPA by failing "to honor written 10 requests for the verification of amounts owed" and utilizing "abusive collection tactics by 11 instituting foreclosure proceedings when there was no default."⁸ Compl., at ¶ 8.2. Wilshire 12 correctly contends that Plaintiffs' FDCPA claim is time-barred by the statute of limitations 13 which begins running "one year from the date on which the violation occurs." 15 U.S.C. § 14 1692k(d). Here, the statute of limitations began running on January 7, 2003 – the last date 15 Plaintiffs allege receiving a communication from Wilshire.⁹ Compl., at ¶ 3.19. Thus, the 16 statute of limitations on Plaintiffs' FDCPA claim expired on January 7, 2004, nearly 14 17 months before Plaintiffs filed their complaint.

18 IV. CONCLUSION

19 For the reasons stated above, the court GRANTS in part and DENIES in part 20 Defendants' motion to dismiss for judgment on the pleadings (Dkt. #23). The only claims

21 ⁷Ocwen's potential liability under RESPA is unclear given that Plaintiffs fail to allege any 22 instances where they sought written clarification of their account from Ocwen.

23 ⁸The court previously dismissed Plaintiffs' FDCPA claim against Ocwen at Plaintiffs' request.
 24 Order, Dkt. # 25 at 4.

25 ⁹The court notes that Plaintiff William Barnett refinanced the loan and paid it off on February 26 24, 2004, thereby ending any relationship with Wilshire thirteen months prior to filing suit.

1 remaining in this action are Plaintiffs' RESPA claim against Wilshire and Ocwen, and their 2 WCPA claim against T.D. Escrow.

3 Dated this 1st day of August, 2005.
